

The Fury

He burst full of anger and hatred of the people that gazed upon him from far away.

He exploded magma upon them covering them with his fury.

The deepest fire in his heart had been set alight.

He had set all of the jungles among him alight.

He spat lava upon the vast world around him.

He engulfed the land around him with his fiery molten rock

When he saw the mass of destruction he had caused he grew evilly content.

The fire in his heart had settled from the devastation.
